Tshisekedi’s election: a defeat for democracy, a monster for the people

Accepting the controversial outcome of DRC's presidential election, the global community has failed the country.

Recent meeting between the country’s former and newly elected presidents reveals bitter truth to Congolese citizens

Nearly two months after elections were held in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC), the country is reeling in shock after discovering that it was merely what observers describe as a cosmetic regime change.

Felix Tshisekedi, leader of the Union for Democracy and Social Progress (UDPS), was declared winner of the polls, but observers say the vote was marred by widespread irregularities and fraud.

HOWEVER,
The trend is Positive; more LEDCs are having elections than ever before.
LESS DEVELOPED

DEVELOPING

MOST DEVELOPED
Developing countries are a large group; including Democracies, Autocracies and Dictatorships.

But we’ll focus on Democracies.
Developing countries have higher GDPs

The people are more prosperous

Governments are more accountable

They trade internationally
